Our attitude could simply be described as the belief in unrestricted possibilities. It dates back to 25 years ago, when we started experimenting with innovative technologies, transforming pieces of plastic into our very first project.

A lot has changed since. Our small workshop and pocket tools were transformed into a developed machine plant, while mass orders have become a daily occurrence.

Some things have not changed that much though. We still feel the drive to innovate and the enthusiasm for new ideas. We still see the potential in every idea and seek optimal ways to shape it. We still answer our clients' questions with, yes - here it's possible.
